NOTE TO: Executive Director
FROM : Deputy Director for Intelligence
SUBJECT: Your Note on Attached Memo

According to [redacted] paragraph 5 is not a fair representation. She tells me the paper was requested by the Committee, [redacted] asked other involved agencies for contributions, and asked to have such contributions in three weeks. Only one such contribution was received. Finally, at the meeting some members of the Committee said that it would have been nice if the paper had come out from the Committee rather than under Agency title and it was agreed that further papers would follow this route. The procedure followed on the paper in question, therefore, was dictated by the Committee in the first instance, which asked for CIA to honcho a paper to which only one other agency made a contribution or sought to participate. In short, there was apparently no "consternation" -- only a decision by the Committee to do things differently next time. (S)

MEMORANDUM FOR THE RECORD

1. The fourth meeting of the Intelligence Committee of the Interdepartmental Group on Terrorism was held from 1400 to 1600 hours on 31 March under the chairmanship of Mr. [redacted] Deputy Chief, IAD/Counterterrorism Group. (See attached for participants and agenda.)

2. The first item discussed was the text of a cable from CINCUSAREUR which requested that the Committee address [redacted]

3. The DIA representative noted that the Office of the Secretary of Defense (OSD) was preparing a draft bill for congress regarding the payment of rewards to people who provide information about terrorists. There is considerable doubt that the bill will ever be passed, but the OSD is pushing hard for it.

4. The duplication/proliferation of terrorist data bases was discussed at some length. Several agencies and departments are creating their own computerized terrorist data bases and all are working with the same basic data. Since the CIA is planning to significantly upgrade its community-dedicated [redacted] base, the idea was presented that perhaps these agencies and departments might consider making their files available on [redacted] or that they at least become aware of other files that are available so that they do not duplicate each other at tax payer expense. Members were urged to explain their data bases and plans for expansion at a future meeting so that all could have a good understanding of what is/will be available in the community. Beaucratic self interest will probably prevail in this area unless the committee is delegated some power from the Executive level.

5. The first threat analysis for the upcoming June Presidential trip to Europe was presented by the DDI representative, who had prepared it on behalf of the Committee. The paper had been coordinated internally within CIA but not with the Agencies represented on the Committee. This gave rise to some consternation among the members. The procedure for preparation of the second threat analysis at the end of April was revised to reflect their concerns. All will have a chance to coordinate on the draft and it will be discussed at the 29 April meeting of the Committee.

6. The NSA representative raised the concern that thus far the Committee has made no progress in establishing procedures for handling the next terrorist incident and that it must make some progress in this regard. As a first step he offered to prepare some scenarios for presenting at the next meeting which could be used to develop procedures to handle the various types of terrorist incidents which the Committee could have to handle. Some members voiced a bit of skepticism over the usefulness of such an approach, but they agreed to at least look at NSA's scenarios at a future meeting.

7. The Secret Service representative presented revised itineraries for the President's upcoming trip.

8. The INR representative mentioned a need for unclassified papers on patron states and analysis of Libyan training camps to present to Congress. She also noted that the chief of INR had raised the idea that there should be far more exploitation of Red Brigades Communiques. The contention here is that there is additional intelligence to be gained.

9. The next meeting was scheduled for 1400 hours on 15 April.
